Hamurabi Browser Extension Privacy Policy

Last updated: Oct 31, 2026

This policy explains what data Hamurabi, the browser extension that rates the legal documents linked on websites, handles and why.

Hamurabi is developed and run by Daniel Stasiak, a private individual residing in Poland, who is the controller of your personal data under the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). In this policy, "we", "us" and "our" mean Daniel Stasiak, and "Hamurabi" means the extension together with the server it talks to.

At a glance

- Once you accept this policy in the extension popup, Hamurabi automatically sends our server the addresses of legal documents (terms of service, privacy policies and similar) that it finds linked on the pages you visit. It does not send the address of the page you are on unless you ask Hamurabi to review a page.
- Hamurabi does not build a history of the sites you visit: the legal document addresses it looks up are not stored with your IP address or installation ID.
- Each request to our server carries a random extension installation ID and your browser's language identifier. Like any internet request, it also reaches our infrastructure with your IP address.
- Our server downloads the public document and has an AI service rate it. AI services never receive anything that identifies you.
- Hamurabi has no accounts and works without your name or email. We show no ads and never sell data.
- Ratings are shared by everyone who uses Hamurabi and are not linked to the person who triggered them.

What the extension sends to our server

Legal document addresses (automatic)

As you browse, Hamurabi checks the links on pages inside your browser. Links whose address or text suggests a legal document are sent to our server so Hamurabi can show you their rating. Once you have accepted this policy in the extension popup, this happens automatically, without a click.

Hamurabi sends the document's full address, including its query string (the part after ?). Parts that do not affect the document, such as the part after # and known tracking parameters, are removed before sending.

Hamurabi does not send:

- the address of the page you are on

- links that Hamurabi's built-in rules do not recognize as links to legal documents
- links on websites you have turned off in the extension popup

Sent with every request

- Installation ID: a random identifier created when you install Hamurabi. It contains nothing about you or your device. We use it to keep Hamurabi secure, to handle the actions you take in Hamurabi and to understand how Hamurabi is used.
- Language: your browser's language, or the closest one Hamurabi supports.

Like any internet request, each request reaches our infrastructure with your IP address and your browser's standard headers.

Sent only when you ask

Some data leaves your browser only when you take an action in Hamurabi, for example:

- Review requests: when you ask Hamurabi to review a page or link, it sends that address so we can review it. This is the only time Hamurabi sends the address of a page you are viewing.
- Feedback votes: when you give feedback on a rating, Hamurabi sends your vote and your language together with the document's address. Removing your vote deletes it from our server.

What our server does with it

Fetching and rating documents

Our server downloads each document, directly or through a service provider. It does not use your cookies, login or session, so it can only read pages anyone can open. If a document needs a login, our server cannot read it, but its address has still reached our server.

Our server then has a third-party AI service rate and describe the document, or translate an existing description into your language. AI services receive public content, such as the document text, and the language, never your IP address, your installation ID or anything else about you. Some AI providers may keep the text they receive and use it to improve their models.

Ratings are shared

Ratings are stored and shown to everyone who comes across that document. A stored rating holds nothing about who asked for it.

What we store about you

When Hamurabi looks up a rating, we save nothing about you with it. We store your installation ID and a hash of your IP address only with actions you take yourself, such as:

What	Stored with it
Review requests	page or document address, a hash of your IP address, installation ID, time
Feedback votes	document address, a hash of your IP address, installation ID, vote, language, time

Instead of your IP address, we keep a one-way hash of it, from which neither the address nor your location can be read. It only lets us recognise abuse, such as automated mass requests or manipulated votes.

Logs

Our server logs how it handles requests, for security and fixing errors. These logs may include the addresses of legal documents, your language and any errors, but not your IP address or installation ID. They are kept for up to 31 days.

Abuse protection

To prevent abuse, we count requests per IP address and per installation ID and block anyone who sends too many. These counters cover only a short time window and expire on their own.

Feedback forms and the uninstall survey

Hamurabi links to forms run by an external form provider, such as feedback and bug report forms in the extension popup, and an uninstall survey that your browser opens automatically when you remove Hamurabi.

The link to each form carries basic technical information, such as Hamurabi's version and your browser and operating system. The form provider receives these details when the form opens, records the visit in its form statistics and saves the details with your answers if you submit the form. Like any website, it also receives your IP address and your browser's standard headers when the form opens. Hamurabi sends the form provider nothing else: no page or document addresses and nothing about the sites you visit.

The forms don't ask for your name or email address. Anything you type or upload in a form, such as your answers or a screenshot, goes to the form provider, not to our server.

What stays in your browser

Hamurabi keeps its installation ID, your settings, saved ratings, your votes and other working data on your device only. Nothing is synced to your browser account, and everything is deleted when you remove Hamurabi. Only the items described in this policy ever leave your browser.

Service providers

Our hosting and infrastructure provider, Cloudflare, Inc. (USA), processes data only on our behalf. It receives everything Hamurabi sends, including your IP address, and stores the actions you take in Hamurabi.

Our online form provider, Tally (Belgium), runs our forms and receives the data described under Feedback forms and the uninstall survey.

Our email provider receives the emails you send us and processes them only on our behalf.

Our document retrieval provider may fetch a document on our behalf when our server cannot download it directly. It receives the document's address, never your IP address, your installation ID or anything else about you.

To rate documents, our server also uses third-party AI services, as described under Fetching and rating documents.

Why we may use your data (legal bases)

Purpose	Data	Legal basis under the GDPR
Showing ratings for the legal documents linked on websites	document addresses, language, installation ID, IP address	Art. 6(1)(b): providing the service you use by installing Hamurabi
Handling the actions you take in Hamurabi, such as review requests and feedback votes	the data listed under What we store about you	Art. 6(1)(b): carrying out the actions you choose to take
Keeping Hamurabi secure and working: rate limiting, logs, IP address hashes stored with your actions	IP address (briefly, for rate limiting), IP address hash, installation ID, document addresses and other request details	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in preventing abuse and fixing errors
Measuring how Hamurabi is used and improving its ratings	installation ID, votes, numbers of requests	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in improving Hamurabi
Feedback forms and the uninstall survey	the details in the form link, your answers and any files you upload, your IP address and other request details	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in understanding and fixing problems; answering is voluntary
Answering the emails you send us, including requests about your rights	your email address, your name if you include it, and anything you write or attach	Art. 6(1)(c): meeting our legal obligation to handle requests about your rights under the GDPR; Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in answering your other messages and keeping a record of how we handled them

You can object to any use based on our legitimate interest at any time, as described under Your rights.

How long we keep data

Data	Kept for
Rate-limiting counters	up to 24 hours
Logs	up to 31 days
Actions you take in Hamurabi, such as review requests and feedback votes	until the action is handled or you remove it, and at most 12 months

Data	Kept for
Data in your browser	until you remove Hamurabi at the latest
Form answers and uploads	up to 24 months
Emails you send us	up to 36 months

Removed actions, such as review requests and feedback votes, can stay in our database backups for up to 30 more days.

Transfers outside the European Economic Area

Some of our service providers may be based, or process data, outside the European Economic Area, for example in the United States, and our infrastructure provider handles requests in data centers around the world. When your personal data leaves the European Economic Area, the transfer relies on an adequacy decision of the European Commission, such as the EU–US Data Privacy Framework for certified companies, or on the European Commission's standard contractual clauses in the provider's data processing terms. You can ask us for a copy of these safeguards using the contact details below.

Chrome Web Store Limited Use

The use of information received by Hamurabi adheres to the Chrome Web Store User Data Policy, including the Limited Use requirements. In practice:

- We use data only to provide and improve Hamurabi's single purpose, rating the legal documents linked on websites, and to keep it secure and reliable.
- We never sell data, use it for advertising, or pass it to advertising platforms, data brokers or other information resellers.
- We never use or pass on data to judge creditworthiness or for lending.
- We share data only with the service providers described under Service providers, when the law requires it, or to protect against fraud, spam and abuse.
- We read individual records only when you send them for us to read, such as review requests and form answers, to investigate abuse or security problems, or when the law requires it. Otherwise we look only at aggregated statistics.

Your rights

Under the GDPR you have the right to:

- find out whether we hold data about you and get a copy of it
- have inaccurate data corrected
- have your data deleted
- restrict how we use your data
- object to any use based on our legitimate interest
- receive the data you gave us in a portable format

Hamurabi has no accounts, so we usually cannot tell which records are yours. If you send us details such as the IP address you used and roughly when, or the address of a page or document you asked us to review, we can look for matching records. Send your request to privacy@hamurabi.app. We may ask for more information to confirm that the records are yours, and we will not act on a request we cannot verify. If we cannot find your records, we will tell you.

You can also act without contacting us: remove a feedback vote in Hamurabi to delete it from our server, turn Hamurabi off for particular websites, or remove the extension to stop all data collection and delete everything stored in your browser.

If you think we handle your data unlawfully, you can complain to the President of the Personal Data Protection Office (Prezes Urzędu Ochrony Danych Osobowych), uodo.gov.pl, or to the data protection authority in the country where you live.

Security and changes

- Security: all connections between Hamurabi, our server and our providers are encrypted in transit. Access to our databases and provider accounts is limited to the people who need it to run Hamurabi.
- No automated decisions about you: Hamurabi's AI rates documents, not people.
- Changes: we publish every change to this policy by updating this document at the same address, with a new "Last updated" date. If we make a significant change, such as collecting a new kind of personal data or using it for a new purpose, we will tell you in Hamurabi before it takes effect: Hamurabi stops working until you accept the updated policy in the extension popup, and you can remove Hamurabi if you do not agree. To learn about such changes, Hamurabi regularly checks our website. This check sends nothing about you except the IP address and the standard headers that any internet request carries.
