Hamurabi Website Privacy Policy

Last updated: Oct 22, 2026

This policy explains what data the Hamurabi website at hamurabi.app handles and why. It covers the website only. The Hamurabi browser extension has its own privacy policy, which you can find on the Hamurabi website.

The website is run by Daniel Stasiak, a private individual residing in Poland, who is the controller of your personal data under the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). In this policy, "we", "us" and "our" mean Daniel Stasiak, and "the website" means hamurabi.app and all its pages.

At a glance

- You can use the website without an account and without giving us your name or email. The website sets no cookies of its own, and the only thing it saves on your device is a website language you select.
- We measure how the website is used with PostHog, an analytics service that does not store your IP address. Each visit gets a random ID that is never saved on your device, so we cannot recognize you when you come back.
- We get your email address only if you sign up for a waitlist or email updates. It goes to Brevo, our email provider, and we use it only to send you the emails you signed up for, until you unsubscribe.
- We show no ads and never sell data.

When you visit the website

Loading pages

The website is hosted on our server and delivered through Cloudflare, which also protects it. Like any website, they receive your IP address and basic information about your browser and the page you open. Our server and Cloudflare log these requests for security, traffic statistics and fixing errors, and keep the logs for up to 31 days. The website loads everything it needs, including analytics, from our own domain.

Analytics

We use PostHog, an analytics service, to understand how people use the website and what we should improve.

What PostHog records

PostHog shows us how the website is used, not who uses it. We cannot tell who you are from what it records. It records:

- Usage: the pages you view, how far you scroll, what you click, and how you got to the website, such as the site that linked you to us. PostHog never records what you type into the website, such as your email address.
- Technical details: basic information about your browser and device, such as their type, language and screen size, how fast pages load, and any errors.
- Approximate location: PostHog uses your IP address to estimate your approximate location, such as your country and city, but does not store the IP address.

A new ID for every visit

PostHog gives every visit a new random ID that is never saved on your device. We do not use PostHog to identify you, and we do not link analytics to your email address or to the Hamurabi extension. PostHog stores analytics data in the European Union.

Waitlists and email updates

When you sign up for a waitlist or email updates on the website, your email address and language go straight to Brevo, our email provider, not through our server. Brevo stores them together with what you signed up for and when, and, like any website, it also receives your IP address.

We use your email address only to confirm your sign-up and send you the emails described where you signed up, in your language where we can, until you unsubscribe. Brevo measures how our emails are opened and which links are clicked, so we can tell whether they are useful.

Signing up is voluntary and we cannot sign you up without your email address. You can unsubscribe at any time with the link in every email, or by writing to privacy@hamurabi.app. After you unsubscribe, we keep your sign-up details marked as unsubscribed, so that you do not get our emails again. If you want them deleted completely, write to us.

When you email us

If you email us, we use your email address, your message and anything you attach only to reply and handle your matter.

What stays in your browser

The website sets no cookies of its own, and analytics saves nothing on your device. If you pick a language, the website saves your choice in your browser so that it opens in that language next time. You can delete it by clearing the website's data in your browser. Cloudflare may set cookies that are strictly necessary for the website's security.

Links to other websites

The website links to other websites, such as the Chrome Web Store, where you can install Hamurabi. We do not share your data with them, and once you are there, their own privacy policies apply.

The Hamurabi extension

The website and the Hamurabi extension are separate. The website receives no data from the extension, and we do not combine what we learn on the website with data from the extension. The extension has its own privacy policy.

Service providers

We use service providers that process data only on our behalf:

Provider	What it does for us	What it receives
Cloudflare, Inc. (USA)	delivers and protects the website	everything your browser sends to the website, including your IP address
PostHog, Inc. (USA)	website analytics, stored in the European Union	the data described under Analytics
Brevo, Sendinblue SAS (France)	collects sign-ups and sends our emails	your sign-up details and how you interact with our emails
A hosting provider	hosts the website on a server in the European Union	requests to the website, including your IP address
An email provider	hosts our mailboxes	the emails you send us

Why we may use your data (legal bases)

Purpose	Data	Legal basis under the GDPR
Showing you the website	IP address and basic information about your browser	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in running the website
Keeping the website secure and working	IP address and request details	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in preventing abuse and fixing errors
Measuring how the website is used and improving it	the data described under Analytics	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in understanding how visitors use the website and improving it
Waitlists and email updates you sign up for	your sign-up details and how you interact with our emails	Art. 6(1)(a): your consent, which you give by signing up and can withdraw at any time
Making sure you do not get our emails after you unsubscribe	your sign-up details, marked as unsubscribed	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in respecting your unsubscribe and showing that we had your consent
Replying to your emails	your email address and message	Art. 6(1)(f): our legitimate interest in answering you

Withdrawing your consent does not affect emails we sent before you withdrew it. You can object to any use based on our legitimate interest at any time, as described under Your rights.

How long we keep data

Data	Kept for
Server and Cloudflare logs	up to 31 days
Analytics data	up to 12 months
Sign-ups for waitlists and email updates	while you are subscribed, until you ask us to delete them or we stop sending the emails you signed up for
Sign-ups after you unsubscribe	marked as unsubscribed, for as long as we send emails through Brevo, unless you ask us to delete them
Emails you send us	as long as we need them to handle your matter, and at most 24 months after our last exchange
Your language choice in your browser	until you clear the website's data in your browser

Transfers outside the European Economic Area

Some of our service providers are based or process data outside the European Economic Area, for example in the United States. These transfers rely on an adequacy decision of the European Commission, such as the EU–US Data Privacy Framework, or on the European Commission's standard contractual clauses. You can ask us for a copy of these safeguards using the contact details below.

Your rights

Under the GDPR you have the right to:

- find out whether we hold data about you and get a copy of it
- have inaccurate data corrected
- have your data deleted
- restrict how we use your data
- object to any use based on our legitimate interest
- receive the data you gave us in a portable format
- withdraw your consent at any time

The website has no accounts and analytics cannot identify you, so we cannot tell which analytics records are yours. If you send us the IP address you used and roughly when you visited, we can look for matching records in our logs. For waitlists and email updates, write to us from the email address you signed up with. Send your request to privacy@hamurabi.app. We may ask for more information to confirm that the data is yours, and we will not act on a request we cannot verify. If we cannot find your data, we will tell you.

You can also act without contacting us: unsubscribe with the link in any of our emails, or clear the website's data in your browser.

If you think we handle your data unlawfully, you can complain to the President of the Personal Data Protection Office (Prezes Urzędu Ochrony Danych Osobowych), uodo.gov.pl, or to the data protection authority in the country where you live.

Security and changes

- Security: your browser connects to the website and to our providers only over encrypted connections (HTTPS). Access to our systems is limited to the people who need it to run Hamurabi.
- No automated decisions about you: we do not make decisions about you based solely on automated processing.
- Changes: we publish every change to this policy by updating this document, with a new "Last updated" date. If a significant change affects the emails you signed up for, we will email you before it takes effect.
